Competencies for Early Childhood Professionals Area VIII: Teacher Qualifications and Professional Development

Rationale:

Professional development in early childhood education contributes to continuous advancement of the field by supporting ongoing development of knowledge and practices that contribute to the quality of life for all young children and their families. Professionalism in early childhood education and care requires (a) engaging in ongoing dialogue with others, both within and outside the field, to advance the state of knowledge through various types of observation, research, and reflection; (b) communicating the importance of high quality care and education for young children; and (c) constructing and monitoring compliance with guidelines for best practice that exceed governmental requirements. Early childhood professionals must understand the laws and regulations that guide practice, as well as voluntary standards that exceed legal requirements. As individuals committed to improving the lives of young children and their families, early childhood professionals serve as effective advocates for policies and procedures that support optimal development. Above all, professionals in the field of early childhood model high standards for ethical practice.

Knowledge:

Professional practice in early childhood education and care is governed by quality indicators prescribed by federal, state, and local laws and regulations, and by policy statements of governing boards. It is enhanced by standards and position statements of professional organizations.

- Early care and education professionals make decisions concerning program planning and practice based on current federal, state, and local laws and regulations for safe, nurturing, inclusive, and enriching programs.
- In addition to meeting legal and regulatory requirements, professionals take steps to achieve high quality standards advocated by professional organizations that often exceed legal requirements.

Professional development is an ongoing process of maintaining current knowledge and practice, participating in ongoing professional development opportunities, and engaging in ongoing synthesis and critical analysis of research and theory as it is applied to practice.

- Professionalism requires knowledge and competency in all areas of child growth and development, educational strategies, and skills to develop, implement, and manage high-quality programs.
- Professionalism requires the integration of reflective teaching practice into daily program operations.
- Professional development is demonstrated and evaluated by early childhood professionals through the construction and implementation of job performance plans.
- Professional development requires a commitment to continue learning through reading, research, reflection, and ongoing dialogue with other professionals.

Professionalism includes advocacy for improving the quality of life for all young children and their families.

- Professionalism includes the ability to explain professional practice as it relates to research, theory, and professional guidelines and standards.
- Professionalism involves the ability to clearly articulate the significance of the early years and the value of early childhood education and care programs to families and to the community while working collaboratively with families, colleagues, and community members to develop program practices and policies that are responsive to and appropriate for children and their families.
- Professionalism promotes leadership skills that enable early childhood practitioners to develop skills needed in order to advocate for high quality programming at local, state, and federal levels.

Professionalism involves the ability to interact ethically with colleagues and families as well as with board and community members to build partnerships that support growth and development of the entire learning community.

Professionalism includes a commitment to a code of ethics that respects the confidentiality of all members while working to support the healthy development of children and their families.

Practices Based on Knowledge:

Early childhood professionals in a variety of types of settings where young children learn and develop:

1. Commitment to Quality

Focus on integrating high quality standards and practices into the development, implementation, and management of programs serving young children and their families.

2. Professional Development

Demonstrate commitment to acquiring and maintaining current professional knowledge and to ongoing professional development. This includes acquiring the necessary skills to engage in competent research and to contribute to the professional and popular literature in order to expand the base of knowledge within the profession and for the public at large.

3. Advocacy

Advocate high quality early childhood care and education programs that serve young children and their families.

4. Ethics

Interact with colleagues, families, board members, and the broader community in ethical ways to build authentic partnerships that support the healthy growth and development of young children. Follow and model a professional code of ethics.

Talks on Tuesdays

Talks on Tuesdays are professional development opportunities that will be held the first Tuesday of each month. These one-hour webinars are designed to provide free online training opportunities related to important topics in early intervention. Topics chosen for the Talks on Tuesdays webinar series are based on feedback from EI practitioners about what they need to know more about!

Did you know that you can use webinars to meet recertification requirements for your VA early intervention certification? Check out How You Can Use Webinars for EI Re-Certification DOC | PDF for ideas about how to combine a webinar with other activities for recertification!
